

PERFORMING ARTISTS

Indigenous Enterprise

Established in 2015, Indigenous Enterprise has taken the world by storm, performing at renowned venues such as Lincoln Center and the Sydney Opera House, and appearing on NBC's World of Dance and during the 2021 Presidential Inauguration's "Dance Across America." Their performances at Indian Market & Festival will mark the final time they present their acclaimed show Indigenous Intentions. Alongside these final performances, they will also offer daily mini sets, continuing to share their mission: to preserve, promote, and advance Indigenous culture through the power of powwow song and dance.

Amy Bluemel

Amy Bluemel grew up immersed in stories as her family moved around the world—now, she brings those stories to life with passion and power. A Chickasaw storyteller, stomp dancer, artist, and educator, she captivates audiences with interactive performances that celebrate and preserve Indigenous culture. With every word and movement, Amy honors Chickasaw history, language, and tradition.

Darren Thompson

Darren Thompson, is a celebrated Native American flutist whose music is not just heard—it's felt. Darren brings the rich traditions of his heritage to life through music. His mesmerizing flute performances blend cultural storytelling with breathtaking sound, creating an experience that is both soulful and unforgettable.

Hollis Chitto

Award-winning beadwork artist Hollis Chitto creates intricate, contemporary designs that blend traditional techniques with modern themes. His work powerfully challenges, honors, and expands Native identity and has been featured in major museums and collections nationwide. Hollis will also be doing beadwork demonstrations—don't miss the chance to see his stunning artistry up close at Indian Market & Festival.
